

ENDANGERED SPECIES

EUROPE

WOLF

Wolves are an important link in the chain of nature. They are a seriously endangered species in Poland and in the world, so you should defend yourself against false views about these animals and focus on their protection.

EUROPEAN BEAVER

European beaver is protected in most European countries.

MOUNTAIN HARE

In Poland, it is a species protected by law.

BROWN

BEAR

The number of brown bears is not defined, but there are very few of them in Europe.

LYNX

The main threat to the lynx is the man and his work, as well as the presence of numerous parasites (tapeworms, nematodes, worms and worm of curving) and diseases (rabies and parvovirus)

ASIA

INDIAN

BENGAL TIGER

Their number decreases because people kill them for valuable horns.

Bengal tiger is a large predatory mammal belonging to the family Felidae. Today it is a protected species in danger of extinction due to extermination of tigers by people.

GIANT

PANDA

The main causes of the extinction of the giant panda is a human activity. Even in ancient times people believed her

DROMEDAR

Y

These camels are endangered and protected, they are killed for human needs.

AFRICA

AFRICAN LION

After 6 intense years of searching for lions in 11 West African nations, researchers have been utterly dismayed to find only 400 lions.

AFRICAN ELEPHANT

The estimates of the number of elephants in Africa range from 410 000 to 650 000 and many populations have not been surveyed for many years.

CHIMPANZEE

Currently there are more than two hundred thousand individuals, surprisingly their number is declining rapidly.

AMERICA

MANED SLOTH

Maned sloth is one of the most endangered mammals in South America.

IVORY-BILLED WOODPECKER

This large bird lived years ago in the south-east part of the United States. The researchers argue that individuals of this species can be found. Since 2000 it is officially recognized by the International Union for Conservation of Nature's a critically endangered species in danger of extinction.

MONARCH BUTTERFLY

This beautiful butterfly is threatened by the development of civilization.

The End